-- The MAILING DATE of this communication appears on the cover sheet with the correspondence address --

Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) OR THIRTY (30) DAYS, WHICHEVER IS LONGER, FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

1. Claims 1, 4, 6, 8, 10, 11, 15, and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Yaacobi (US 6,416,777).

Claims 1, 4, 8, 10, 11, and 15: Yaacobi discloses in Figures 9 and 10 a trans-scleral device attaching to the scleral surface comprising an insert stabilizer (50) having an interlock opening (20) a replaceable implant (46) having a reservoir (81), an interlock tab (87), and an anti-angiogenesis factor in the form of a pellet (column 6, lines 10-23) in the reservoir (81) (column 7, lines 1-27).

Claim 6: Yaacobi discloses in column 8, lines 59-63 refilling the device by disengaging the replaceable implant while leaving the stabilizer attached.

Claim 16: Yaacobi discloses in Figure 9 the stabilizer (50) having a first end in which the interlock opening (20) is disposed, and a second end (25) having a relatively narrower width the first end.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 2, 9, 14, and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yaacobi as modified by Sponsel et al (US 2004/0198829).

Yaacobi discloses in Figures 9 and 10 a trans-scleral device attaching to the scleral surface comprising an insert stabilizer (12) having an interlock opening (20) a replaceable implant (46) having a reservoir (81), an interlock tab (87), and an anti-angiogenesis factor in the form of a pellet (column 6, lines 10-23) in the reservoir (81) (column 7, lines 1-27). Yaacobi further discloses in column 8, lines 59-63 refilling the device by disengaging the replaceable implant while leaving the stabilizer attached.

Yaacobi discloses the claimed invention except for the use of trans-scleral administration of CAI for angiogenesis treatment. Sponsel et al teach that known to use administer CAI trans-sclerally in paragraphs 0112 and 163 to provide an effective way of administering a beneficial anti-angiogenesis factor. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the method as taught by Yaacobi with trans-scleral administration of CAI as taught by Sponsel et al, since such a modification would provide the method with an effective way with administering a beneficial anti-angiogenesis factor.

3. Claims 3, 5, 7, 12, 13, 17, 18, 19, and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sponsel et al as applied to claims 2, 9, 14, and 21 above, and further in view of De Carvalho (US 2005/0113806).

Art Unit: 3767

Yaacobi as modified by Sponsel et al discloses the claimed invention expect for the reservoir being refillable through being connected to an injection port and an insert stabilizer comprising an eyelet for attaching the device through suturing. De Carvalho teaches that it is known to use a refillable reservoir connected to an injection port and an insert stabilizer comprising an eyelet for attaching the device through suturing as set forth in Figures 5 and 6 in order to allow safe refill of the reservoir (paragraph 0073) and for attachment of the device to the eye. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made o modify the method as taught by Yaacobi and modified by Sponsel et al with a refillable reservoir connected to an injecting port an taught by De Carvalho, since such a modification would provide the method with a way of safely refilling the reservoir and an eyelet for attachment of the device to the eye.
